SOCCER REFEREE MUST STAND FOR CRITICISM

Most of Critics, However, Are Those Who Would Not Be Competent to Officiate in a Game, Douglas Stewart Asserts

By DOUGLAS STEWART
 Coach of University of Pennsylvania Soccer
 CRITICISM of the referee is one of the commonest occurrences at a game of soccer. Seldom does one hear him praised, no matter how earnest, capable and conscientious he may be. Players are praised, teams are praised, but the referee, who is the only one who is not a player, is almost always the target of criticism. In the nature of criticism is heard, the referee, and the criticism is almost always of the nature of "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that" or "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that". The referee is the only one who is not a player, and the criticism is almost always of the nature of "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that" or "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that". The referee is the only one who is not a player, and the criticism is almost always of the nature of "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that" or "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that".

Those who, as a rule, are most vociferous in their criticism are those who could not referee a game under any conditions if they were called upon. It does not occur to them, particularly in the case of the referee, that it is not their business to referee a game, but that it is the business of the referee to referee a game. The referee is the only one who is not a player, and the criticism is almost always of the nature of "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that" or "you didn't see that" or "you didn't call that".

It is a fact, however, that in the average game very little effort is made by the officials to handle the game, and this is particularly noticeable in recent years. BOSTON COLLEGE CROWNED 'CHAMP'

Veteran Athletes Present Trophy Emblematic of Eastern Grid Title

Team, Intercollegiate Champion of 1920.
 From the touching scene which took place on the field at the close of the game, the crowd could not see the trophy which was presented to the team by the veteran athletes of the Eastern Grid Title. The trophy was presented to the team by the veteran athletes of the Eastern Grid Title.

For that reason, Boston College, which went through the 1920 season undefeated, and its victims included such stalwarts as Fordham, Holy Cross, Georgetown, Boston University, Marquette College and Yale, should be singled out as the real champion team. The trophy was presented to the team by the veteran athletes of the Eastern Grid Title.

PHILADELPHIA AIDS GIRLS IN ATHLETICS

Dr. Matthew C. O'Brien, of Central High, Tells How Schools are Fostering Physical Development. Movement Began Back in 1869

By SPICK HALL
 The past increase in girls' and women's athletic activities during the last five years is reflected in the number of public contests. One of the most remarkable features of this development is that the girls of today can play virtually all of the games that men and boys play, and they usually do them well. Their proficiency in the many branches of sports is limited only by their physical qualifications.

Dr. Matthew C. O'Brien, who for eighteen years has had charge of all physical activities at Central High School, is a great believer in athletics for girls. "We are fortunately getting away from the old ideas that girls should have no part in athletics," said Dr. O'Brien. "Formerly there was a lot of prejudice against competitive athletics for girls, but this is changing, and today we can see it constant increase not only in the number of athletic teams for girls but in the number who take some kind of physical exercise."

The schools of Philadelphia are doing a great work in getting girls to take some form of wholesome exercise. There are many reasons for this. One is that the girls of today are more physically developed than those of a few years ago. Another is that the schools are more interested in the physical development of their students.

EXTRA PERIOD FOR SKEETERS TO WIN

Neil Dieghan's Field Goal Gives Champions Victory by 22-20 Score

The Camden Eastern League champions have one player in the line-up who seldom breaks into print, but is just as valuable a cog in the cage machine as any of the other four stars. He is Neil Dieghan, and possibly it is Neil's quiet disposition that has set him in the background from a publicity standpoint.

Potters Led at Start
 The visitors led at the start and soon were ahead 4 to 1, but the home talent evened the score and the figures were also even at 4 and 4.

Dieghan Comes Through
 After the regulation wait, the two clubs went at it again and the only points made in the additional five minutes were the lone 2-pointer, caged by Dieghan from past the center of the court. Once Camden secured the lead they cleverly proceeded to "freeze" the ball, a stunt the Potters had overlooked in the closing moments of the regular game when they were ahead.
